Jakarta Reports Medan Recaptured From Rebels

Government's Claim Disputed

SINGAPORE (AP)—President Sukarno's Indonesian army claimed Monday it had regained control of the airport and harbor at Medan in North Sumatra and that insurgents had withdrawn from the strategic city.

The claim was called false by the rebel radio at Padang in Central Sumatra, which Sunday announced capture of the island's largest city by troops who mutilated against the Sukarno regime.

The city has a population of 300,000.

A Medan broadcast supported the government announcement of recapture of the city. Neither the Medan broadcast nor the Jakarta government announcement gave any details.

Although the rebels disputed the government claims, they appeared convinced that Maj. Boyke Nainn Golan and the one mutinous battalion he led against the government Sunday could not hold the city long.

They reported Capt. Pohan, who displaced the Jakarta-appointed military commander in Tapanuli Province in northwest Sumatra Friday, was leading three battalions to reinforce Golan.

Rebel informants said Pohan would have to pass through the Siantar district where Maj. Lubis, who did not take part in the Sunday revolt, was deployed with a regiment of troops.

(This dispatch did not further identify Lubis, Col. Zulkifli Lubis, former deputy chief of staff of the Jakarta army, was ordered dishonorably discharged by the Sukarno government because he joined the rebel regime. He has been accused of taking part in a plot to assassinate Sukarno.)

Padang radio also reported, without giving details, that fighting was going on in the Langkat area north of Medan.

Censored Jakarta dispatches said the Sukarno government had five battalions in Medan.

Farm Support Freeze Backed By House Unit

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Agriculture Committee overwhelmingly approved Monday a resolution calling for a one-year freeze on farm price supports and acreage allotments at or above present levels.

The vote was 25-8, with Republicans casting all eight votes against the proposal. Seven other GOP members went along with solid Democratic support for the resolution.

In the face of a threatened presidential veto, the committee softened terms of the resolution voted by the Senate last Thursday by limiting the freeze period to one year.

The Senate-passed resolution would in effect make it permanent, at least until repealed or superseded by Congress.

Revision of the Senate terms to limit the freeze period was an undisguised move to make the resolution more acceptable to President Eisenhower and Secretary of Agriculture Benson, who said last week he would recommend a veto.

Committee Chairman Cooley (D-N.C.) told newsmen the one-year limit "certainly seems to take away most of the objections from the bill."

Eisenhower, Governors Will Confer

President Invites Committee To Meet With Him Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower Monday invited nine governors to meet with him Wednesday to discuss his plan for stretching out the period of payments to jobless workers.

The White House announced Eisenhower had sent telegrams to each of the nine members of the executive committee of the Governor's Conference.

The telegrams read in each case:

"I would like very much to confer with the members of the executive committee of the governor's conference about a limited and temporary extension of the duration of unemployment compensation benefits.

"We have developed a tentative plan on which I would appreciate your advice and counsel.

"Can you meet with me in my office in the White House, Wednesday afternoon, March 19, at 2:30 p.m. for this purpose?"

Telegram Recipients

The telegrams went to: Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois, executive committee chairman, and the other committee members, including Govs. John E. Davis of North Dakota, Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas, Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina, Joseph B. Johnson of Vermont, Goodwin J. Knight of California, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Albert D. Rosellini of Washington, and George B. Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina.

The telegrams went out on a day that produced a report from the Federal Reserve Board saying that in February "industrial production, employment, incomes and retail sales again declined." Industrial production fell three points to 130 per cent of the 1947-49 average. This was the lowest point since December 1954, and was 11 per cent below the level a year ago.

Works Loan Bill Introduced

The Federal Reserve report coincided with new action in Congress to combat the drop in business and employment.

In one move, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) introduced a bill proposing a two-billion-dollar program of low-interest loans by the federal government to help local governments finance public works activities.

In another, Sen. Johnson (D-Tex.) called for larger Social Security benefits, including more aid to the aged, in any tax bill Congress may consider.

Johnson, the Senate Democratic leader, also raised the threat of evening sessions for the Senate if it drags out action on a highway bill estimated to provide 88,000 jobs.

Manifesto Asks Batista Resign

HAVANA (AP)—Thousands of Cuban civic and professional leaders called Monday night for President Fulgencio Batista to resign "to save Cuba from anarchy and chaos."

They issued a manifesto saying only the resignation of Batista and his government could end bloodshed and resolve what they called a grave crisis affecting the nation.

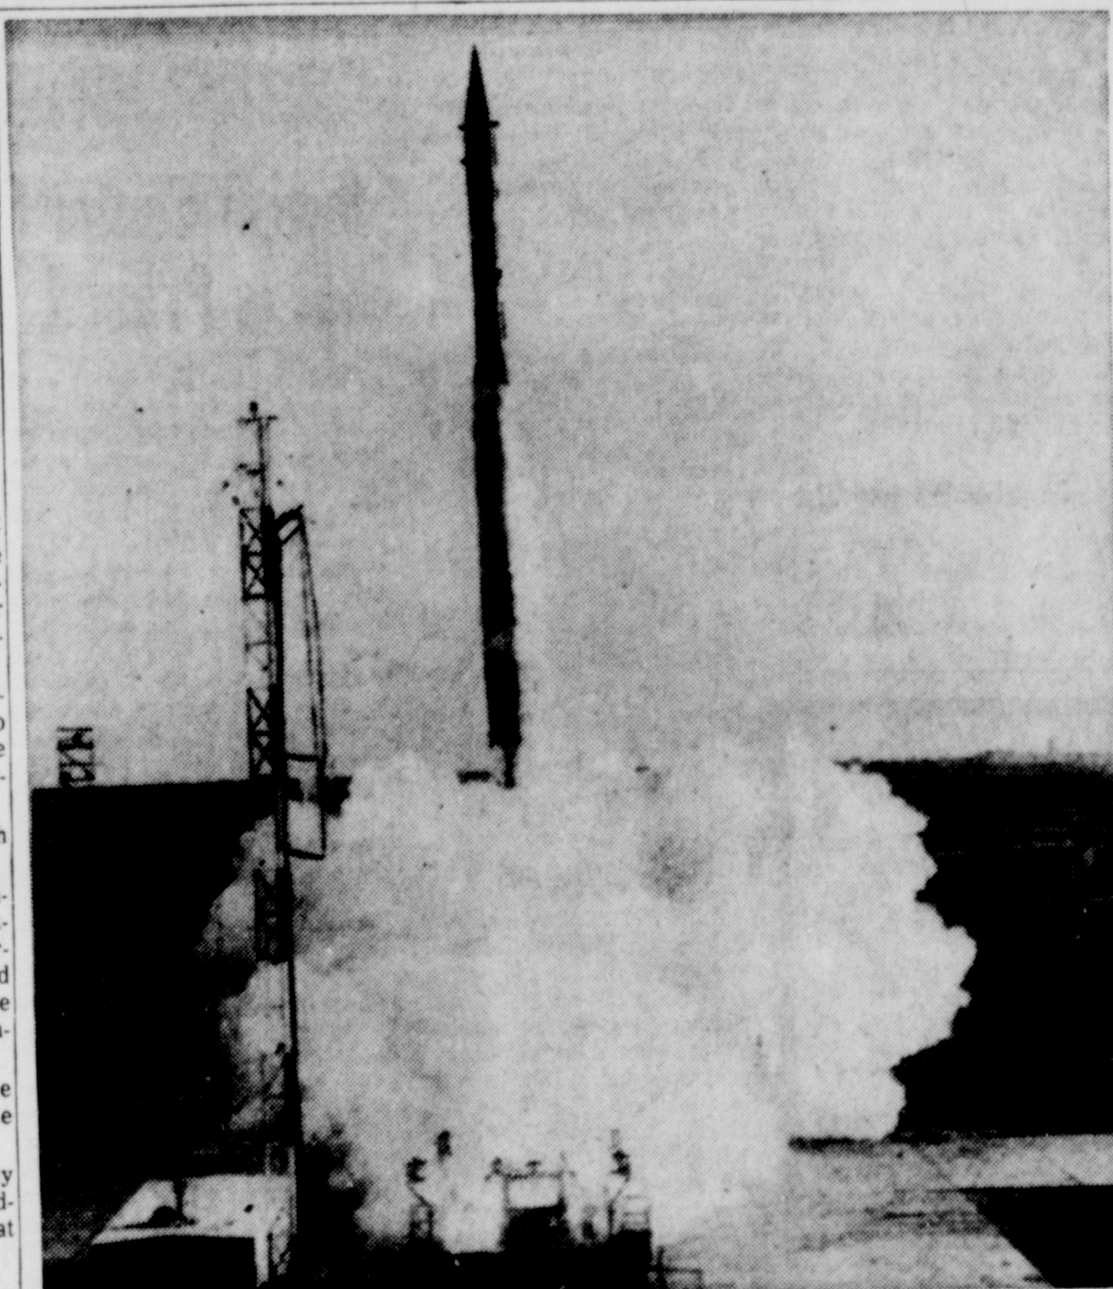

The declaration coincided with an ultimatum from rebel leader Fidel Castro telling Batista to quit by April 5 or face a fight to the finish.

The manifesto came from representatives of 42 religious, fraternal, professional, civic and cultural organizations. It said the bitter passions "inundating the country would plunge it into anarchy" unless the government quit.

There was no immediate comment from the presidential palace, but it was evident Batista intends to continue in power and carry through with elections June 1. His presidential choice, former Premier Andres Ribero Aguiro, has said nothing and nobody can prevent the elections being held.

Second U.S. Satellite On Its Way

The Navy's Vanguard rocket, a 6.4 inch test satellite beneath its nose cone, leaves the launching pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., as it streaks for space to put the new baby "moon" into orbit around the earth. U.S. Production At Lowest Level Since Dec. 1954

WASHINGTON (AP)—Industrial production slumped in February to the lowest level since December 1954, the Federal Reserve Board reported Monday. Its index dropped three points to 130 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

This took the index 11 per cent below the high level of a year ago. Production of autos, household appliances, machinery and other durables in February was 16 per cent below the 1957 rate, the board said.

The board's monthly summary of business conditions summed up the state of the economy in these words:

"Recession in economic activity continued in February. "Industrial production, employment, incomes, and retail sales again declined, and unemployment rose to a new postwar high. Construction activity was curtailed slightly.

"In February and early March, prices of farm products and foods continued to rise, while prices of industrial commodities changed little."

The report said bad weather contributed to the over-all reduction in industrial activity but led to a rise in production by the electric and gas utility industries.

The production of consumer durable items was down 20 per cent from a year earlier, the board reported, and stood at the lowest level since December 1953.

In the machinery and industrial equipment lines, production rates averaged about 15 per cent below the record level of a year ago.

Evidence that March was not bringing the hoped-for upturn in at least some segments of industry was reported in the following notation:

"In early March auto output was curtailed further and steel production remained near the low February rate."

Italian Elections Set For May 25

ROME (AP)—President Giovanni Gronchi dissolved Parliament Monday and the outgoing government immediately set May 25 for general elections.

Premier Adone Zoni's government hopes the elections will end a year of political paralysis. The absence of an absolute majority has balked every major bill or project in Parliament.

The campaign is expected to be bitter. Italy's Communist party, biggest west of the Iron Curtain, already has indicated it will make U.S. missile bases in Italy one of its major issues. The Communists and their extreme left Socialist allies also are expected to hammer hard on relations between Italy and the Roman Catholic Church.

Navy Vanguard Firing Delayed By Army 'Moon'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Vanguard I had to wait for 10 minutes, before taking off into space, to let its Army predecessor Explorer I, get past this part of the world.

The Navy's moon was scheduled for a 7 a.m. launching. But Explorer I was orbiting so that it would cross this general area between 6:50 and 7:10 a.m. This meant that there might be an overlapping and confusion of the radio signals from the two satellites.

Vanguard rescheduled its launching for the 7:10 period.

Only one hitch developed thereafter. At 7:04 a.m., six minutes before launch time, a hold or delay was called due, not to anything within the rocket but, to an erratic sequencer or time indicator in the ground control station. The instrument was used as a clocking camera starter and was not essential to the flight test.

Thus it was that Vanguard soared skyward at 7:16, with the start of its celestial journey delayed a quarter of an hour through no fault of its own.

Ike Foreign Policy Speech Set April 17

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will deliver a major foreign policy speech April 17 at a meeting here of American, European and Asian leaders.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty announced Eisenhower would "talk on foreign policy" before a joint luncheon meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors and the International Press Institute.

Hagerty said the speech will be about a half hour in length. He said he understood the major radio networks are arranging to record the speech for later broadcast.

Moore Denies He Influenced Miami TV Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mamie Eisenhower's brother-in-law, George Gordon Moore, swore today he never asked or got government favors in the Miami TV Channel 10 case or any other case.

The former Army colonel acknowledged that "people have dropped my name in various places" and he said "I may have been used" in an airline venture with which he was associated six or seven years ago.

But he told the House subcommittee on Legislative Oversight his relations with the White House are "strictly social—in a family way."

And he added, in a laughing comment to reporters later, that from a business standpoint his in-law relationship with the Eisenhower family is more a liability than an asset.

Moore, 54, appeared voluntarily to answer a charge by the committee's ousted counsel, Bernard Schwartz, that he is a member of a White House clique engaged in machinations for big business.

In addition A. Frank Katzen-tine, loser in a bid for the Miami TV license, has said he heard Moore engineered the award by the Federal Communications Commission of Channel 10 to a National Airlines subsidiary.

Moore, a gray-haired man with an affable, persuasive manner, said he never even discussed the channel 10 award and never heard of any White House influence clique.

Chairman Harris (D-Ark.) said Moore was to be commended for coming voluntarily before the committee. Rep. John Bell Williams (D-Miss.) praised him for his reluctance to discuss pending matters with members of FCC or other policing agencies.

Navy 'Moon' May Stay Up 5-10 Years

3 1/4-Pound Sphere's Orbit Puts It 2,500 Miles Out In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Navy's Vanguard, a finely-tuned space rocket, fired the free world's second satellite into orbit around the earth Monday.

Clicking like a fine watch in its arrow-true climb into the blue sky, the Vanguard hurled its tiny, radio-equipped aluminum "moon" into an egg-shaped orbit so ideal that it may travel through space 5 to 10 years.

It weighed only 3 1/4 pounds and was only 6.4 inches in diameter, but it was equipped to gather much of the information needed before manned vehicles could venture into space.

Minutes after the world's smallest but highest-flying satellite began its globe-circling journey, the signals were picked up by tracking stations.

Its voice joined that of Explorer I, the first U.S. satellite launched here Jan. 31 by the Army's Jupiter-C missile.

The third man-made moon now orbiting in space, the Soviet Union's dog-carrying Sputnik II, is silent. The 1,120-pound Red satellite is losing altitude, and American scientists expect it to plunge to a fiery death in the world's dense atmosphere about April 14.

Exceeds 18,000 MPH

Sputnik I, first of the Soviet moons, disintegrated Jan. 4.

Dr. John P. Hagen, director of the Vanguard project, said the new American satellite is traveling at a little better than 18,000 miles an hour in an orbit that will swing it as far as 2,500 miles out in space and bring it as close to the earth as 400 miles.

Explorer I reaches a maximum distance of 1,575 miles from the earth. Sputnik II looped out 1,200 miles and Sputnik I only 580 miles.

Today's beautiful performance of the Vanguard overcame the Soviet numerical superiority in space, and helped heal the heartaches of its builders.

Twice before, Vanguard launching attempts ended in fiery failure. The first blew up last Dec. 6 after rising only four feet off its launching pad. The second broke apart Feb. 5 after climbing 20,000 feet.

The Vanguard, its makers said, had been rushed into action before it was ready.

But now the slender gray-green rocket has made up for all past disappointments.

Moon Next Goal, Hagen Says

Its smooth, trouble-free journey into the skies after the blastoff at 7:16 a.m. brought wild cheers from personnel of the Navy and the Martin Co., the rocket's builder.

Immediately after President Eisenhower told the world the rocket had carried out the mission for which it was created, Vanguard spokesmen were talking of more ambitious ventures in space.

One more of the 3 1/4-pound moons probably will be launched. The vehicle is at the missile test center here and ready to go.

Then a 20-inch, 20 1/2-pound sphere, with more elaborate instruments to tabulate the secrets of space, is to be fired.

Hagen said the rocket fired today proved itself so well that the next logical step would be to try to orbit a satellite as far out as the moon, 240,000 miles from the earth.

Judge Parker Dies After Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (AP)—Judge John J. Parker, 72, one of the country's leading authorities on constitutional law, died Monday after a heart attack.

He was chief judge of the fourth U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeals, a jurisdiction covering Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas. In 1945 he was associated with the war crime trials at Nuremberg, Germany, as an alternate to Francis S. Biddle, the U.S. representative on the international military tribunal.

Later Judge Parker served as judicial adviser to the U.S. high commissioner in Germany.

He lived in Charlotte, N.C., and had come to Washington to attend a meeting of the Judicial Conference of the United States and speak before the United Nations League of Lawyers.

Auto Target Slashed

DETROIT (AP)—The auto makers are sharply reducing their production target for 1958, Ward's automotive reports says.

Now in prospect for the year, the statistical service says, is an output of 4,700,000 units against earlier estimates of 5,300,000.

Marylanders Who Helped Build Vanguard Jubilant

BALTIMORE (AP)—The official and unofficial reaction to the successful launching of the Vanguard satellite Monday was pure joy at The Martin Co. plant at nearby Middle River.

The four test vehicles which preceded the firing of TV4 which popped the grapefruit-sized satellite into orbit, plus the successors scheduled to launch six fully-instrumented 21-inch spheres, were made at Martin's Middle River plant near Baltimore.

About 500 Marylanders helped design and build the three-stage Vanguard rocket, including 200 engineers and skilled craftsmen who actually worked on the rockets.

Martin employees, long-suffering through two Russian satellite launchings and a third by the U.S. Army, were jubilant today.

"St. Patrick came through for us," was the way one happy official put it.

A large sign which quickly appeared in the plant cafeteria at noon read "Vanguard Go Brrrr."

AFL-CIO Bulletin Criticizes President

WASHINGTON (AP)—The IUD Bulletin, published by the Industrial Union Department, AFL-CIO, said Monday the nation can't depend on President Eisenhower for leadership to combat the recession.

The IUD, of which Walter Reuther, auto union chief, is president, said in its magazine's lead article: "Mr. Eisenhower seems willing enough to concede that the federal government can do much to combat the recession. But he seems unwilling or unable to use the tools of government to this end despite the mandate contained in the employment act of 1946."

"For the time being, at least, the nation cannot look to Mr. Eisenhower for the kind of leadership it needs and deserves," it said.

The article recalled that last fall the President urged the public to curb buying to war against high prices and inflation, but now he is urging consumer purchasing to help retard the recession.

Reed Asks Md. And Va. To Seek Fishing Accord

WASHINGTON (AP)—Virginia and Maryland were asked Monday to seek an agreement over Potomac River fishing rights and thus avoid a long court fight.

Former Justice Stanley Reed made the suggestion since it was "agreed that there was a reasonable basis for hoping . . . such agreement could be worked out without prolonged litigation."

Reed recently was named special master to help the Supreme Court settle the dispute between the states over the historic Compact of 1785.

The Maryland Legislature last year abrogated the compact on the grounds Virginia was not helping enforce conservation laws for oysters and fish.

Virginia brought suit on grounds Maryland could not repeal the compact without the consent of Virginia.

Reed ordered progress reports from the two attorneys general by June 3. He ordered further hearings deferred until after that date.

Reed issued the order after a pretrial discussion with Attys. A. S. Harrison Jr., of Virginia and C. Ferdinand Sybert of Maryland, their assistants.

"It appears that former controversies between the Commonwealth of Virginia and the State of Maryland have heretofore been adjusted by agreement, and that no reason exists why the present differences could not likewise be adjusted," Reed's order said.

Jewish Center Blasts Probed

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A stranger's babble on a synagogue doorstep alarmed Beth Jacob Congregation officials Monday as authorities probed bombings that damaged Nashville, Tenn., and Miami Jewish centers.

Miami police rushed to Beth Jacob after an unidentified man doubled-parked an automobile, rushed up the synagogue steps and harangued three members who were going in to a service.

They quoted him as saying excitedly: "God talks to me. And if this cross (referring to a Menorah—a religious symbol—on the synagogue awning) doesn't come down then things are going to happen, because you've got to be Jewish or gentile." Then he drove off.

Dr. Tibor H. Stern of Beth Jacob said he regarded the man's antics as an apparent act of frustration or uneasiness.

No suspects were located immediately in Sunday's Nashville or Miami dynamitings. Neither injured anyone but both blasts jarred neighborhoods and broke windows of nearby buildings. Damage was estimated at $30,000 to the school-recreation annex of Temple Beth-El, in Miami's southwest section, and $6,000 to the Nashville Jewish Community Center.

Butler Urges Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Butler (R-Md.) called Monday for tax reductions but he did not spell out any formula.

He said in a weekly newsletter that present personal taxes include rates far beyond the point of diminishing returns. He added that such rates were designed to penalize success rather than to raise revenue.

Nicky, The Barbary Ape, Takes It On Lam Again

MEMPHIS (AP)—Nicky, the Barbary ape, took it on the lam again but humane shelter and zoo attendants tailed him into a downtown office building and put the collar on him.

The fast-paced chase ended in a third-floor hallway of the building where Nicky's pursuers worked him into a corner and tossed a net over him.

Then Nicky, actually a tailless monkey and not an ape, was bundled off to the Memphis Zoo and the end of his long, but seldom dull, trip from Gibraltar.

Nicky escaped when an unwary attendant opened his cage at the Railway Express terminal.

After his crash-out the 5-year-old simian dazzled onlookers with a dashing display of acrobatics.

Nicky climbed atop the railroad station, thence scrambled to the roof of a branch post office.

After pausing for a moment, he scrambled down onto the roof of a parked automobile, then climbed to the top of still another downtown building.

It was Nicky's second bid for freedom since his arrival in this country last week aboard the Navy's supply ship Antares.

After the Antares put into Norfolk, Va., Nicky escaped from his cage and climbed to the top of a mast. There he perched overnight.

He was recaptured, succumbing to the lure of a Navy trap baited with bananas, carrots, lettuce and water. His captors put him back into a cage, and packed him off by railroad to Memphis.

U. S. Moonwatch Teams Alerted

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory has alerted 127 United States moonwatch teams to try to sight America's Vanguard satellite Tuesday morning.

Many of the teams would be in action anyway because Sputnik II is making a series of visible passages over the country morning and evening this week.

The Smithsonian held out no hope that the actual 6.4 inch Vanguard satellite could be sighted with the naked eye. However, the scientists said the third stage rocket, weighing about 50 pounds, should be faintly visible.

The rocket is five feet long and nearly 20 inches wide and is expected to be easier to sight than Explorer I, launched Jan. 31.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Joseph C. Deaton Sr., 43, will be tried in Guilford Superior Court here on a charge of stealing the money his son was saving for college from a newspaper route.

In a preliminary hearing Monday, police said they had accused the elder Deaton, who is separated from his wife, of taking $250 young Joseph kept in a locked closet.

Officers quoted Deaton as replying: "It was not $250. It was $239."

Senate Votes Transfer Of Building To Museum

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed legislation today providing for the eventual transfer to the Smithsonian Institution of a District of Columbia landmark, the old Patent Office Building.

Now known as the Civil Service Commission, it would be made available to the Smithsonian for displaying national collections of paintings, sculptures, bronzes, porcelain and other types of art now scattered around the city.

Civil Service Commission offices ultimately will be housed in a building bounded by 19th and 20th, New York Avenue and E Sts., N. W.

"Bookies" Win, Truckers Lose In Tax Rulings

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that "ordinary and necessary expenses" of operating in illegal bookmaking business may be deducted for federal income tax purposes.

In another unanimous ruling involving what constitutes deductible business expenses, the court held fines paid by truckers for violating state weight limitation laws do not qualify as deductions.

The ruling applied specifically to three Chicago bookmakers. The Internal Revenue Service disallowed tax deductions for rent and wages but the U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago reversed this ruling.

In the case of two trucking concerns which sought to deduct state fines paid by them for overloading, Justice Clark said allowance of the deductions would severely and directly frustrate a state policy. In other actions today, the court:

1. Agreed to hear an appeal of the International Boxing Clubs of New York and Illinois to determine whether they violated anti-trust laws in promoting championship fights. U.S. District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan of New York ruled the clubs monopolized title bouts from 1949 to 1953 and ordered the clubs dissolved.
2. Refused to rule on legality of a Tallahassee, Fla., bus seating assignment ordinance under which two Negroes and a white person were fined and sentenced to jail.

Baltimore School Bars Girl Who Dyed Hair Green

BALTIMORE (AP) — Irish green and Irish ire went hand-in-hand in the Leo V. Miller family Monday. But neither got anywhere against firm school officials who wouldn't let 15-year-old Margo Miller attend classes with her hair dyed green.

The principal said the appearance of the attractive, normally blonde ninth grader at the school with her tresses tinted the shade of shamrock caused too much excitement among the 2,600 pupils at Woodbourne Junior High School.

The principal telephoned Miller to inform him his daughter would not be allowed in classes. Either she could remain in the office and do her studies there all day or she could return home, the principal told the father.

Miller blew up.

"If I'd had a shillelagh, I'd probably have knocked it across her skull," he said.

"I've never been so mad in all my life," he said. "I refused to go to the school or do anything about it." He called the Board of Education and vented some more of his Irish ire on an assistant superintendent. But the department official merely upheld the principal's stand.

Miller, on his way to the annual Hibernian Society mass at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, said the principal had told him the students were in an "uncontrollable uproar, a near riot."

"Can you imagine anything so ridiculous?" Miller said "it proves that the public schools lack any control over the students."

"This is not the first time this has been done. My older daughter used to do it (dye her hair green) when she went to Notre Dame of Maryland (a private Catholic girl's school) and there was never a ripple of protest," Miller said.

"They (school officials) never became alarmed about drape clothes and ducktail haircuts," Miller added. "Why should they get so upset about a girl using a little food coloring in her hair to show she's Irish on St. Patrick's Day?"

The school principal denied there was a "near riot" at the school but she said the students were congregating in the halls before classes began and there was enough of a disturbance to justify keeping Margo and her green hair out of class.

"Many children come to school with shamrocks, green ties or other green clothing and we give them the mild kind of approval that we all give to our Irish friends and neighbors on St. Patrick's Day," said the assistant school superintendent.

But he said classes must go on, even on St. Patrick's Day, so "naturally anything which creates a sensation (like green hair) and would tend to disrupt the school schedule cannot be approved."

The assistant superintendent said the school's position did not reflect on Margo, herself "quite a good student" and in the accelerated program.

"It was simply her appearance," which brought the ban from class.

Later, Mrs. Miller went to the school and took her daughter home. She said she did it only because photographers requested her picture and school authorities would not allow it. "We had planned to leave her in school," Mrs. Miller said.

Farmer, Duck Hunter Fined

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Dorchester county man who let hunters use his farm for a fee was fined himself Monday for hunting wild fowl over a baited area.

Chief Judge Roszel C. Thomsen imposed the $100 fine in Federal Court on Lloyd Travers, 45, of Cambridge.

Travers was arrested in December in one of three duck blinds he had on his farm. The defendant protested in court he had no idea how the area happened to be baited with yellow corn.

Jack Hunt, 53, of Cheverly, who said he paid Travers to hunt on the farm, was fined $35.

Travers told the court he charged hunters $15 a day if they got their limit of game and $5 if they did not.

Va. Gov. Almond Thanks McKeldin

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. McKeldin Monday received an official note of thanks from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. of Virginia for Maryland's recent action in outlawing slot machines on the Potomac River.

Almond predicted the legislation, which will take effect June 1, "will have a salutary effect on the whole section of Virginia concerned with these operations" and strengthen "the ties of friendship and mutual respect" between the two states.

The new law from the 1958 General Assembly bans slot machines on any piers or boats which can't be reached by foot from the Maryland shore. It is aimed at six gambling piers and one boat operating off the Virginia shore opposite Charles and St. Marys counties in the Maryland-owned river.

Fire Damage Closes School

WASHINGTON (AP)—An 89-year-old grade school set on fire by arsonists Sunday night for the third time this year was closed Monday because of damage.

Fire investigator Kermit R. Mullins said the blaze at Stevens Elementary School in Northwest Washington was started by papers, some of them from the principal's files.

Three first-floor rooms were burned out.

Mullins and six detectives began questioning pupils Monday in an attempt to find the vandals. Three boys attending the school were arrested after two fires there on successive days in January.

Mullins said damage in the latest blaze would exceed the $8,000 loss from the two earlier fires.

In addition to setting the fire, Sunday night's vandals smeared paint on desks and walls.

Burned By Fumes

BALTIMORE (AP)—Leaking ammonia fumes burned an ice cream plant worker around the eyes and hands Sunday night.

Vandel Floyd, 42, was burned while trying to locate source of the leak in the Meadow Gold Ice Cream Co. plant. He was treated at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

W.Va. To Urge New Interest In Polio Shots

Only 64 Per Cent Children Inoculated

CHARLESTON — Possible ways to reawaken public interest in the polio-vaccine program in West Virginia were discussed Monday at a meeting in the State Health Department.

It was the first meeting of a steering committee made up of representatives of the department, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the West Virginia State Medical Assn., and other agencies.

The meeting was prompted by the fact that although the supply of Salk polio vaccine is plentiful, large percentages of the state's population in some age groups have not yet been vaccinated.

Health Department estimates showed that 64 per cent of the state's children in the 5-9 age group have received three or more inoculations. This is considered the most susceptible age group.

But the department gave these estimates of the percentages in other age brackets which have had three or more injections.

Ages 0-4, 29 per cent; ages 10-14, 58 per cent; ages 15-19, 29 per cent; ages 20-40, 2 per cent, and expectant mothers, 5 per cent.

No decision as to a course of action was announced by the committee, which plans another meeting in the near future. Attending from the Health Department were Director N. H. Dyer and Deputy Director Harry Handley.

Also at the conference were T. Sterling Evans of Charleston, state representative for the National Foundation; Executive Secretary Charles Lively of the State Medical Assn., and Virginia Owen of the Industrial and Publicity Commission.

Tree Growers Convention Snowbound

DAVIS, W.Va., March 17 — Christmas Tree growers found nothing green at Blackwater Falls State Park, despite the proximity of St. Patrick's Day.

In fact, it was all white. The 50 delegates to the annual convention of the West Virginia Christmas Tree Growers Assn. got snowbound at the park lodge.

The conventioning tree growers along with a group of snowbound skiers from eastern colleges, dispersed for home Monday after another traffic-stalling snowstorm.

Park officials said they measured the 200th inch of snow for the winter during the weekend storm.

The lodge had a near-capacity guest list of 120 when the snow closed in Saturday night and Sunday morning.

It was so bad the kitchen and dining room personnel couldn't make it from their quarters to the lodge Sunday morning.

So a group of co-eds from Randolph-Macon College at Lynchburg, Va., pitched in and prepared and served breakfast. The regular personnel took over for lunch, after a break in the snowstorm.

At their weekend business sessions, the Christmas Tree Growers elected Charles R. Hall of Buckhannon as the new president of their association.

Potomac State Will Elect May Queen

22 Principals To Be Chosen

KEYSER — Dates have been set for two spring elections by the Student Council at Potomac State College. The election for the 22 principals for May Day will take place Tuesday April 1, and the election of student body officers Wednesday, April 23.

Included in the 22 persons to be elected April 1 are the May Queen and her escort, two maids of honor and escorts, and eight princesses for the Royal Court and their escorts.

Fraternities, sororities, and other organizations are asked to choose their slates of candidates and submit names to David Satterfield, president of the Student Body, no later than noon Friday, March 28. Voting will take place from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the main corridor of the Administration Building under the supervision of the Student Council.

Each organization entering a slate of candidates will submit only candidates for queen and escort and eight princesses and escorts since it is customary for the maids of honor and their escorts to be runnersup for queen and escort.

Eligibility rules for both elections will be strictly enforced. Candidates in the two elections must meet the usual eligibility requirements.

Bids Opened On Projects At College

FROSTBURG — Bidding on two major Frostburg State Teachers College projects has been revealed by the State Department of Public Improvements.

One construction job is a new dining hall and the other, a new laboratory school.

The apparent low bidder on a combination of the two projects is Baltimore Contractors, 711 South Central Avenue, Baltimore, with a total of $1,139,400.

Second low was the George Construction Company, Cumberland, with $1,143,130, and third, John I. Vandegrift Company, Cumberland, $1,143,785.

Bidding on the individual projects was as follows:

Dining hall—Vandegrift, $465,485; W. Harley Miller, Martinsburg, W. Va., $495,224; and George, $496,076.

Laboratory school — George, $653,045; Vandegrift, $668,300, and Miller, $789,750.

This was the second time bids were asked on these two buildings. The first bids opened in January were rejected as being too high for the amount of money available.

Daughter Of Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Is Shenandoah Apple Blossom Queen

WINCHESTER, Va. — Miss Daphne Fairbanks, 18-year-old brunette beauty, who is at home in London, New York, Los Angeles and Virginia's Hot Springs, will be Queen of the 31st Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival here on May 1-2. Miss Fairbanks is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Jr., of Los Angeles and London. She is a student at Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

The Queen-elect's father is internationally known as star of stage and screen, as motion picture director-producer and for his appearances on TV and radio. He is a Captain in the United States Naval Reserve. Her paternal grandfather was, of course, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., one of the great cinema stars of all-time. Her paternal grandmother, Mrs. J. Whiting Howard, lives in New York City.

On her mother's side, Miss Fairbanks has many ties with old Virginia, and with West Virginia. Her grandfather was the late Dr. Giles T. Epling, of Giles County, Va., who lived much of his life in the Bluefield, W. Va. area. Mrs. Epling, her grandmother, still lives in Bluefield. The Queen-elect's maternal aunt, and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Burriss, of Roanoke, have expected to be present to see Miss Fairbanks crowned Queen Shenandoah XXXI, as do other of her relatives in the Virginias. Her maternal uncle, Dr. Harold W. Epling, lives in San Clemente, Cal.

Miss Fairbanks' trip to Winchester will be a home-coming to Virginia. The Douglas Fairbanks Juniors formerly owned a farm at Hot Springs where, in the Queen-elect's own words, "we spent a great deal of time until four years ago."

Born at Los Angeles on April 8, 1940, the Queen-elect's full name is Daphne Nancy Beth Fairbanks. She is the eldest of three daughters. Her sisters are Victoria, 15, and Melissa, 10. Miss Fairbanks was educated at St.

Mathews School, Pacific Palisades, Cal.; Miss Faunaces School, London; and Montesano, Pstaa, Switzerland. She is a Freshman at Briarcliff College, plays the piano, sings, likes to swim, play tennis and ski. In movies, she prefers drama and, tactfully, has no favorite stars.

Miss Fairbanks made her debut in London last June, being presented to society at a dance at "Cliveden," the home of Lord Astor, son of Virginia's Lady Nancy (Longhorne) Astor. In September, the Queen-elect made her debut in New York at a party at the Ambassador Hotel, given by her God-mother, Mrs. Raymond Guest, and Mr. Guest, of King George, Va.

"My delight with the wonderful honor bestowed on me by the invitation to become Queen of the Apple Blossoms," Miss Fairbanks has written Mrs. Beverly Wright, director of the Festival's Queen and Court Department, "is doubly exciting to me because, as my mother's people came from Virginia and my paternal grandparents' family came from Virginia, I feel it is a glorious home-coming. It is impossible for me to express adequately, either my excitement or great pleasure."

Miss Fairbanks will be crowned Queen of the Apple Blossoms in colorful ceremonies here on Thursday afternoon, May 1. Queen of the 1957 Festival was Miss Anne Denise Doughty-Tichborne, of Winchester, England.

Algerian Problem And Indo-China

"If the French couldn't hold on to Indo-China, how can they hold on to Algeria?" asks a growing body of opinion inside as well as outside France. France let Indo-China go after 7½ years of warfare there. It is now almost 3½ years since the present rebellion broke out in Algeria.

Arguing that the two aren't militarily comparable, the Government in Paris points out that the Algerian insurgents have been able to mount only guerrilla hostilities. There's been nothing like the organized offensives, culminating in the siege and capture of Dien Bien Phu, that finally drove the French out of Indo-China.

Also, the pro-Communist Viet Minh forces in Indo-China (and hardly anybody calls the Algerian nationalists pro-Communist) received military help from Red China far more pretentious than arms being supplied the Algerians through Tunisia. And France was prevented by law from transporting drafted men to Indo-China. There are no legal limits on using French forces in Algeria, in structure an integral part of metropolitan France.

On the other hand, in Indo-China the French got direct military aid, especially in airplanes, from the United States. And whereas in South Vietnam they were able to enlist Indo-Chinese natives in their armies, it's impracticable now to put into French uniforms even Algerians unsympathetic to the rebel cause.

The Indo-Chinese war was estimated to have cost France almost $1 billion a year. In its last full year it accounted for more than one-fourth of the military budget. The Algerian war is now costing France over $1 billion annually, is dangerously straining the French balance of international payments, is using up manpower needed on French farms and in French industry.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Dubinsky's Next Move

Now that David Dubinsky has won his strike as had been planned, he is again master in his house and can devote himself to the more gentle art of politics. For David Dubinsky is the dominant personality in New York State's Liberal Party which has produced between 300,000 and 400,000 votes in some elections.

The Liberal Party is a break-away from the American Labor Party which was organized upon instructions of President Franklin D. Roosevelt to catch those voters in New York who would vote for Roosevelt or for Mayor La Guardia but not under the Tammany Hall banner.

The American Labor Party came under the control of Vito Marcantonio and was suspected by many of being an adjunct of the Communist Party. Such pro-Roosevelt anti-Tammanites as A. A. Berle, Jr., David Dubinsky and Alex Rose, head of the Milliners' Union, organized the Liberal Party which up to now has been an adjunct of the Democratic Party, and has been controlled by Dubinsky.

In the forthcoming gubernatorial election, the Liberal Party, that is Dubinsky, faces a dilemma. According to all the rules of life, Governor Averell Harriman deserves and ought to get the Liberal Party endorsement which should be worth enough to put him over quite comfortably. However, if Nelson Rockefeller decides to run on the Republican ticket for Governor, he can have the nomination because that party in this state is without leadership or money, and if Rockefeller can produce nothing else, he can provide money. Therefore many Republicans are for him because even if they cannot win, they will at least be on a gravy train.

For Dubinsky, this is tough. Nelson Rockefeller has been a political protégé of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, the brilliant public relations counsel, who is very close to both David Dubinsky and Averell Harriman. If Dubinsky switches from Harriman to Rockefeller, will he be an ingrate? And if he rejects Nelson Rockefeller who has been something of a buddy of Dubinsky's, will that also not be ingratitude?

Can the Liberal Party, like a Bar Association endorsing judges, say that both are not bad? And if both are not bad, who are the sheep to vote for?

To muddy the waters, the Liberal Party has been suggesting all sorts of candidates for United States Senator—Dr. Ralph Bunche, the United Nations Under Secretary and probably the foremost Negro in the United States. Then they talked about Ed Murrow, the broadcaster who visits the homes of celebrities and asks genteel questions. Both Bunche and Murrow have apparently declined the honor. The Democratic candidate is likely to be Mayor Robert Wagner of New York and it is impossible to see how Dubinsky can refuse him the Liberal Party endorsement after he helped him win this face-saving strike. But if the Liberal Party endorses Wagner for Senator can it refuse Harriman support? Can the Liberal Party turn Nelson Rockefeller for Governor and Mayor Robert Wagner for United States Senator?

This is too illogical even for Dubinsky who as an old-style Social Democrat pursues opportunism as a way of life. And he has done very well thereby. However, can he pull his voters with him as he does workers in a strike? That, of course, is the question that can only be answered at the polls. A fellow who has a treasury of $200,000,000 can be a very attractive person and Dave Dubinsky has other favorable qualities.

It will be fun to see a campaign in New York in which the contenders are millionaire Harriman versus millionaire Rockefeller, both lovers of the people. Harriman has been more consistently New Deal than Nelson Rockefeller who has worked in the Roosevelt, Truman and Eisenhower Administrations.

There are five Rockefeller brothers and of them, Nelson is the politician whose eyes are unquestionably set on the Presidency. It is to be noted that every man whom Mrs. Anna Rosenberg has groomed has won a place of distinction. There must be an alumni association of them. Nelson Rockefeller will make a good try in New York and even should he lose to Harriman, it will not be a dead loss, for if he does well at all in 1958, which is expected to be a Democratic year, he undoubtedly might be Vice-Presidential stuff in 1960. The stakes are big and the players can afford them. But what will Dubinsky do?

'Those American Recessions Must Be Terrible'

More Spending, Lower Taxes, Big Deficit Ahead

WASHINGTON

The late Lord Keynes, a sardonic fellow who enjoyed a good laugh, must be chortling in his grave. For Keynes, the apostle of deficit spending to cure a depression, was the intellectual godfather of the New Deal, and among proper Republicans, "Keynesianism" has long been a very bad word indeed. Yet one thing is now clear beyond dispute — the Republican administration is as wholly committed as the Democratic leadership to the proposition that a big deficit is much to be preferred to a big depression.

To be sure, Republicans and Democrats approach the inevitable deficit from opposite directions, like the confused soldiery in "The Lays of Ancient Rome" — "those behind cried 'forward,' while those before cried 'back.'" The Democrats are crying "spend more" while the Republicans are crying "tax less." In the end, both sides are likely to get their way — plus a deficit which will make the New Deal deficits look like nothing at all.

Within the Administration, there is no longer any resistance whatsoever to a big tax cut, if the economic slide continues. The only debate is on the timing and size of the cut. What might be called the Nixon-Mitchell junta, lead by the Vice President and the Secretary of Labor, want a very big tax cut, and they want it right away, given any further indication at all that the economy is slipping.

For example, the figures for unemployment compensation claims, which are published three weeks or more before the overall unemployment estimates, almost accurately forecast the unemployment trend. The March unemployment compensation claims will be available Thursday. If the figures show even a small rise, Nixon and Mitchell are extremely likely to press the Administration for a big tax cut then and there.

Moreover, the Nixon-Mitchell group regards a $5 billion tax cut as a minimum, and would by no means rule out a $7 billion cut, on the theory that, if the thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing in a big way. Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson and the President himself, on the other hand, want to delay the moment of decision at least until the March unemployment figures are released in mid-April. And they regard $5 billion as a maximum rather than a minimum.

But these are differences only of degree, and a big tax cut can be written down as dead certain unless there is a sudden and totally unexpected economic upturn. If you examine the other side of the coin — the spending side — you begin dimly to discern a deficit of a size to make the eyes of the most daring New Deal pump-primer bug out.

Senate Majority Leader Lyndon Johnson has been putting on one of his accustomed spectacular operations, jamming through the Senate a Johnson anti-recession program. Colonel Gordon Moore Gets Irish Stallion From Oilman's Stable

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — One of the interesting, hitherto undisclosed developments in the life of Col. Gordon Moore, the President's brother-in-law, is the prize Irish stallion on the Moores' week-end farm in the fox-hunting country of northern Virginia. The stallion is Leslie Boy and is valued at $65,000.

Leslie Boy was either given or loaned to Col. Moore by the Clint Murchison racing stable. Murchison is one of the biggest oil and gas men in Texas and one of the leading advocates of a natural gas bill, which the President has publicly supported.

While it was known that Murchison has been on friendly terms with the White House, it was not known he was so friendly with the President's family as to give or loan a prize stallion to Col. Moore.

Leslie Boy was foaled in Ireland, sired by Royal Charger out of Badoura by Colorado Kid. He was imported from England by the Murcain Stables, arriving in the United States on Oct. 29, 1954.

The Murcain Stables is the name given to the Murchison-Cain family stables, and Leslie Boy is registered in the name of Effie Marie Cain and Virginia Murchison. The latter is the wife of Clint Murchison, while Effie Cain is the wife of Wofford Cain, head of the Southern Union Gas Company, a Murchison subsidiary. Another partner in the stable is Billy Byars, an oilman of Tyler, Texas.

Efforts to reach Col. Moore, Mr. Byars, and members of the Murchison family were not successful. However, a spokesman for the Murchison interests said the horse was a loan. One employee working on the Col. Moore estate, however, described the stallion as a gift.

Jack Hall, overseer of Col. Moore's estate, refused to state how long the horse had been there or who the owner was. Asked if Col. Moore owned it, he replied: "I don't know. It's here."

"Was it a gift?" Mr. Hall was asked.

"I don't know. It's here. That's all I know."

The stallion has not raced because he got a nail in one foot. Col. Moore also has seven mares on "Holiday Hills Farm," which is a well-painted establishment with white wooden fences, two tenant houses, a master's house, horse barn, shed, silo, and a large pond. The farm appears to be about 400 acres and shows signs of considerable investment. Residents of near-by Hillsboro, Va., said that the Moores had owned it for about five years and lived there week-ends for about three years.

One of Col. Moore's horses, Holiday Admiral, was scratched at Bowie last week but is due to race again this week. Another horse, Holly High, was lost in a Charles Town claiming race.

If Leslie Boy is a loan he could be a very profitable loan; for stud fees on thoroughbred stallions run high. The near-by Middleburg, Va., Chronicle, in a great horse center, advertises stallions with stud fees of from $3,000 to $5,000 per service.

Note: Shortly before Eisenhower entered the White House, Col. Moore was unemployed and was having difficulty meeting payments on his home. When Ike got nominated, Col. Moore got a job at $6,500 a year. After Ike was elected, Col. Moore's fortunes zoomed.

Ike Listens To Labor

AFL-CIO leaders were far from satisfied with the results of their publicized meeting with President Eisenhower. Two things irked them: Ike's insistence that economic conditions were not as critical as the labor chiefs contended, and a rather abrupt termination of the White House session.

After 35 minutes, Ike began shuffling some papers on his desk. The labor chiefs took the hint, though they had wanted to do some further sounding-out of the President's tax-reduction ideas. It was obvious, however, that Ike didn't want to be sounded out, particularly on tax legislation.

"I am concerned about the present economic situation," he said, "but I am not alarmed by it."

This was in direct reply to a statement by AFL-CIO president George Meany that the country was rapidly heading for a worse recession unless immediate steps are taken to head it off.

Eisenhower maintained the government was doing "everything possible" to stimulate business by public works and other measures. He added that he was not convinced, as the labor leaders maintained, that conditions would become progressively worse. He said he was counting on a pick-up within the next few months. However, if there were no signs of an upturn within the next 30 days, he said, the government would consider some further measures.

Less Withholding Taxes Urged

"A tax reduction that would have the effect of immediately bringing down withholding taxes, to increase purchasing power, is the first and the most important step to be taken, in the opinion of labor," suggested George Meany.

David McDonald of the Steel Workers reported that 50 per cent of his members are either out of work or employed part time. Auto Workers chief Walter Reuther added that auto production is down to 60 per cent of normal. "Mr. President," said Reuther, "do you realize that 900,000 new automobiles are in storage because people do not have the money to buy them?"

"I can't understand why that should be when there is more money in savings accounts than ever before," replied Ike. "Why aren't those people with savings accounts buying automobiles?"

His callers didn't answer. Later one of them explained to a friend: "We just stared at Ike when he let go with that one."

Meeting Menshikov

By Bob Considine

WASHINGTON (INS) — If the F.B.I. really photographs all people entering and leaving the Soviet Embassy, the boys got some nice shots the other day of Bill Hearst, Frank Conniff and myself. Here's what happened inside:

Russia's new ambassador to the U. S. smiling Mikhail Menshikov, had invited us to lunch but the man who opened the big glass and metal Embassy door looked as if he didn't approve. We entered the big and distinguished hall and were scrutinized briefly by two clerk-types who emerged chatting from an office on the right. Down at the end of the hall, an Embassy functionary made gestures indicating he knew why we were there. He flicked on the hall lights in that section and took our coats, hanging them on a plain clothes pole.

Two smiling Embassy aides came forward with extended hands and led us to a little elevator off the foyer. As one opened the door, we heard the voices of children and their footsteps coming down a back stairway which led into the area. They were two cute little girls with school books, bundled for a trip outdoors and shepherded by two attractive women.

"Let us go ahead," one of the aides said, beckoning us toward the elevator. We hesitated and let the children and their mothers—or nurses—go by first.

"Whose children?" Bill asked, as we headed upstairs.

"Employees' kids," the man said, letting it go at that.

We got off on the third floor and were led to two huge closed doors. It was gloomy in that place, but when the doors were opened we were beckoned into a brightly sun-splashed and pleasant drawing room whose divans faced a marble fireplace. There stood Menshikov, in his private apartment.

He stands about six feet, seems to have a better, or braver, tail- or than most of the Russians, has well-groomed gray hair, wore a figured bright blue tie. He smiled with all but his blue eyes, shook hands and bade us welcome. Almost instantly, a well-groomed pretty brunette maid, in traditional capitalist maid's uniform, bore in a tray of manhattans, sherry and tomato juice.

"Would you prefer something else?" the ambassador asked in his polite and excellent English. We ordered vodka.

"You know the old saying, 'When in Rome, do as the Romans do,'" Bill said to him.

It puzzled him. "You mean the Italians make vodka?" he asked, astonished.

It took a bit of explanation, but at last we were back on the track, and this time it had to do with his flight to this country in Russia's TU-104, a 600-mile-an-hour twin jet, and a previous trip he had made in that type of plane from Moscow to Peiping in less than 11 hours. We told him we had flown in it from Prague to Moscow in November, a trip of about 1,000 miles.

"That's no good in the TU-104," he laughed. "By the time you get up it's time to start down. Now we have lunch."

It was caviar, decorated by flower-shaped butter (more vodka), then a white fish smothered in a creamed mushroom sauce (a medium white wine with this), then steak with peas, stringbeans and potatoes (red wine), then strawberries topped with great frills of whipped cream.

We talked chiefly economics, the development of our West and of Siberia, private enterprise. These were some points that either Menshikov or his bright young men made:

A Russian can will his house, his furnishings, his car and his money to his family, but not the land on which he has built. That's the state's. There are no inheritance taxes. Some Russians, especially farmers, amassed considerable sums of currency during World War II. One of these "presented" the rubles equivalent of a million dollars to the government, "to pay for a war plane."

Anybody can start a business in Russia but he cannot hire another Russian to work for him, or wait on him, except through the state employment service—which the hired person can appeal to if he/she feels he/she is being exploited. The Russian who banks his money gets a better interest rate if he promises not to draw on his account for the first six months after deposit. (Menshikov reacted happily to this.)

The flood of university- and institute-trained specialists flowing from Russian schools are channeled into those areas—often Siberia—where "they best fit." The worse the area, the better the pay and the longer the annual vacation period.

"Suppose all the graduates want to go to, let's say, your Florida instead of some place in coldest, darkest Siberia?" we asked.

"Our people just would not want to go to Florida," one of the bright young men smiled, doggedly.

Menshikov dampened a corner of his napkin with a bit of vodka and reflectively removed a spot from his lapel.

"Now, we will have coffee in the next room, please," he said, rising and bowing us back into the drawing room. It was time for more serious talk.

WASHINGTON

The late Lord Keynes, a sardonic fellow who enjoyed a good laugh, must be chortling in his grave. For Keynes, the apostle of deficit spending to cure a depression, was the intellectual godfather of the New Deal, and among proper Republicans, "Keynesianism" has long been a very bad word indeed. Yet one thing is now clear beyond dispute — the Republican administration is as wholly committed as the Democratic leadership to the proposition that a big deficit is much to be preferred to a big depression.

To be sure, Republicans and Democrats approach the inevitable deficit from opposite directions, like the confused soldiery in "The Lays of Ancient Rome" — "those behind cried 'forward,' while those before cried 'back.'" The Democrats are crying "spend more" while the Republicans are crying "tax less." In the end, both sides are likely to get their way — plus a deficit which will make the New Deal deficits look like nothing at all.

Within the Administration, there is no longer any resistance whatsoever to a big tax cut, if the economic slide continues. The only debate is on the timing and size of the cut. What might be called the Nixon-Mitchell junta, lead by the Vice President and the Secretary of Labor, want a very big tax cut, and they want it right away, given any further indication at all that the economy is slipping.

For example, the figures for unemployment compensation claims, which are published three weeks or more before the overall unemployment estimates, almost accurately forecast the unemployment trend. The March unemployment compensation claims will be available Thursday. If the figures show even a small rise, Nixon and Mitchell are extremely likely to press the Administration for a big tax cut then and there.

Moreover, the Nixon-Mitchell group regards a $5 billion tax cut as a minimum, and would by no means rule out a $7 billion cut, on the theory that, if the thing is worth doing at all, it is worth doing in a big way. Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson and the President himself, on the other hand, want to delay the moment of decision at least until the March unemployment figures are released in mid-April. And they regard $5 billion as a maximum rather than a minimum.

But these are differences only of degree, and a big tax cut can be written down as dead certain unless there is a sudden and totally unexpected economic upturn. If you examine the other side of the coin — the spending side — you begin dimly to discern a deficit of a size to make the eyes of the most daring New Deal pump-primer bug out.

No Perfect Remedies Known For Halitosis

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Americans have become sensitive about halitosis and some go to ridiculous extremes to keep the breath odorless. There are no perfect breath sweeteners, to my knowledge. But good results usually follow practicing oral hygiene and eradicating infection and digestive disturbances.

Bacteria in the mouth and the remainder of the intestinal tract are involved in many instances of bad breath. Brushing the teeth after each meal and rinsing the mouth with a suitable gargle will give some protection. It may be necessary for a few to chew gum and suck on lozenges. Chlorophyll is helpful, provided the dosage is adequate.

But these aids will prove only temporary when the teeth are decayed or abscessed or the gums infected. Such disorders are odor producers and, when corrected, the general health will improve as well as the breath.

Frequently halitosis stems from infected tonsils or other lesions in the mouth. The sinuses and the nose must be checked for disease or defects; the same applies to the stomach and intestines.

Some of the gas that forms through fermentation in the intestines is absorbed by the blood and eliminated through the lungs.

This is a common cause of halitosis, especially during illness or when constipation is present. It is not always easy to control but there is no need to become a laxative addict to "sweeten the breath." It is better to include more fruits and vegetables in the diet.

One-half teaspoon of powdered charcoal 10 to 15 minutes before meals helps to control the accumulation of gas. Avoid redolent foods such as onions and garlic, as well as medications that produce foul odors. Overindulgence in tobacco and alcohol aggravates the situation. If you nibble on chocolates in bed at night or drink a glass of milk, get up and brush your teeth afterward.

OPENING THE WINDPIPE

F. L. writes: When is a tracheotomy done?

REPLY In this operation, an opening is made in the windpipe, just below the Adam's apple. The procedure is done as a life saving measure when the individual cannot get his breath because of obstruction in throat or larynx. This may be due to a foreign body or to inflammation. A tube usually is placed in the artificial opening to keep the incision open; it is removed when the obstruction disappears. Then the opening is sewed together.

Leon Cadore, Pitching Star, In 26-Inning Tie Game, Dies

Opposed Oeschger In Longest Major Contest In 1920

SPOKANE, Wash., March 17 (INS)—Funeral arrangements were being made today for Leon Cadore, 66, whose 26-inning mound stint stands as the longest baseball game in major league history.

Cadore died Sunday of cancer, a month after entering Spokane veterans hospital for surgery from his home in Hope, Ida.

During his May 1, 1920, record pitching feat for Brooklyn, he gave up one run, allowed 15 hits and wore out one catcher before the game was called due to darkness.

Opposing Cadore was Boston's Joe Oeschger, who also went the route in the 1 to 1 stalemate.

Oeschger, a retired teacher, now lives in San Francisco.

Cadore, orphaned at 13 in New York, came west to Hope, attended Spokane's Gonzaga University and then hitch-hiked east to get into pro baseball.

He pitched in 135 games, winning 63 and losing 72. He played on the Brooklyn team from 1915 to 1923, when he was sold to the Chicago Club of the American League. He ended his career with the New York Giants in 1924.

Cadore married Maie Ebbets, daughter of Charles Ebbets, for whom Brooklyn's Ebbets Field was named. Cadore was a New York stock broker from 1925 until the market collapse in 1929.

Then he and his wife returned to Hope where Mrs. Cadore died in 1950.

Their marriage was childless. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Gabel, of Hope, and Mrs. Milton J. Riordan, San Francisco.

Phils Get 15 Hits, Defeat Cards, 6-2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Richie Ashburn led a 15-hit Philadelphia attack with four straight hits Monday, a double and three singles, as the Phillies defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2.

Jack Sanford, pitching five innings, and John Gray held the Cards scoreless. St. Louis scored its runs off John McCall in the eighth.

Need For City Assistant Engineer Is Questioned

A recommendation for the appointment of an assistant engineer came under fire yesterday at a meeting of the Mayor and Council.

Charles R. Nuzum, city engineer, recommended to the council that Charles R. Scarlett, who is serving as a draftsman in the Engineering Department, be appointed assistant engineer.

Finance Commission John J. Long asked Nuzum: "Do we really need an assistant engineer?"

Nuzum answered "yes" and pointed out that since the retirement of William H. Marean, who was the city's assistant engineer until April 1955, that Scarlett has been handling the work along with his duties as a draftsman.

At this point Long asked Nuzum why he (Nuzum) could not handle the assistant's duties along with his work.

Nuzum replied that this would be impossible since a great deal of his time is consumed with administrative work and that he does handle a little of the work, but is unable to accomplish as much work as is required.

Nuzum also stated that much of the work day is consumed working along with the Army Corps of Engineers on the flood control program and the State Roads Commission in connection with the Cumberland Thruway.

Commissioner Long said that in all fairness to Nuzum he realized his position, but felt that he received sufficient assistance from consultant engineers on bridges, pipe lines, the sewage treatment plant, flood control project and other jobs in the past. The commissioner also brought out engineering work on the flood control, sewage treatment plant and other jobs have been completed.

Nuzum said he was recommending Scarlett for the assistant's job because he is the best man available.

Long stated that he did not question Scarlett's qualifications since he has been doing the work in the past, but was of the belief that the duties could be easily handled by the city engineer.

As a draftsman Scarlett receives a salary of $5,000 yearly, while the position of assistant engineer pays $5,600.

Long states that he hoped Nuzum could handle the work for the present time and help pull the council through this period until more funds are available.

Commissioner William H. Buchholz made a motion that the matter be tabled one week until additional information could be provided.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Richard W. Keller, who died 2 years ago, March 18, 1956. The blow was hard, the shock severe. We never thought his death so near. Only those who have lost can tell. The pain of parting without farewell. He little thought when leaving home. That he would never return. That so soon in death would sleep. And leave us here to mourn. God knows how much we miss him. Never shall his memory fade. Loving thoughts shall ever wander To the spot where he is laid.
Missed by his daughter Connie, his mother, brothers and sisters.

Campbell Drops Out Of Contest For Governor

Throws Support To J. Millard Tawes

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bruce S. Campbell, Baltimore County contractor, withdrew Monday as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, for reasons of health.

He threw his support to State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes.

The 64-year-old Campbell had been a surprise entry in the race March 10, the final day for candidates to file. Since he did not get out before the withdrawal deadline of midnight Saturday, he will lose his $290 filing fee.

Asks Vote For Tawes

"At the request of my wife and family," Campbell said, "I have recently undergone a thorough physical examination. My doctors have today reported that it is physically impossible for me to stand the strain of a vigorous campaign."

"Because of this advice and out of consideration for my family, I ask the members of the Democratic Party not to vote for me at the primary election May 20 and to vote for Millard Tawes."

Secretary of State Claude Hellman said he would ask Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert for a ruling on whether Campbell's name would appear on the primary election ballot.

Campbell's withdrawal left Tawes and two political newcomers in the Democratic gubernatorial contest.

Leaves 3 In Race

Tawes is the candidate of the so-called "harmony" ticket. The other aspirants for governor are Morgan L. Amaimo, Baltimore attorney, and Joseph A. Phillips, Baltimore auto sales executive.

Tawes' second cousin, former University of Maryland president H. C. Byrd, announced last Friday his withdrawal from the Democratic race for governor.

Byrd said at the time he felt he could best accomplish his objective of a Democratic victory in the November general election by leaving the race and devoting his time to coordinating various party elements.

Campbell, before he filed for the nomination, had publicly deplored the lack of youthful candidates. Campbell said at that time:

"Back in August, 1957, I wrote to Millard Tawes requesting that he step aside and lend his support to a young Democrat who would assure a Democratic victory in November and who would bring to the Statehouse an enlightened administration for the benefit of the people of Maryland and the Democratic Party."

Car Collision Agent Control Set In W.Va.

Licensing Plan Is Effective April 14

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 17 (AP)—A new regulation of the State Insurance Department will require licensing of any person who solicits authorization for purchase of automobile physical damage insurance.

The regulation, announced Monday by Insurance Commissioner C. Judson Pearson, takes effect April 14.

Automobile physical damage insurance, popularly called collision insurance, covers damage to the insured's own car. It is not to be confused with liability coverage of damage to another person's car.

Pearson explained that the main practical effect of the new regulation will be to require licensing as insurance agents or solicitors of many auto dealers and salesmen and auto loan personnel of banks and other lending agencies which finance car purchases.

Such persons will be required to obtain licenses if they solicit authorization for purchase of collision insurance. It has become common practice for car purchasers to place their insurance authorizations through car dealers of financing agencies.

Although licenses will be required of all persons soliciting or in any way procuring authorization for purchase of physical damage insurance, the usual examination required for licensing of insurance agents will be waived under certain circumstances set forth in the regulation.

At a similar cost, Dorothy F. Perdue, 510 Eastern Avenue plans to build a dwelling which will measure 40 feet by 28 feet by 12 feet. It will have brick veneer walls, concrete block foundation and a composition shingle roof.

Mr. Cover plans to build six brick ranch-style one-story homes at a cost of $15,500, two at $17,500 and one for $19,500.

They will have cellars, concrete block foundations, brick walls and composition shingle roofs. The homes will be located in District 29, and completion date for the new homes is expected to be in September.

Ike Is Asked To Boost Aid Purchases Here

Decline In Coal Production Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was urged Monday by Sen. Revercomb (R-WVa.) to order the purchase of more foreign aid commodities—especially coal—in this country.

Revercomb told the Senate he asked the action as an anti-recession move.

In a letter to the president, Revercomb recalled that the law provides for such purchases in this country if foreign purchases would have an adverse effect on the U.S. economy.

There is strong justification, I feel, for invoking this provision under present conditions," Revercomb wrote. "It is my understanding that purchase of commodities by the International Cooperation Administration is running at the rate of more than one billion dollars a year."

He added "if all such purchases were made in this country, many additional jobs would be provided."

Revercomb said he is particularly interested in the purchase of coal.

"Coal production has declined substantially in recent months, resulting in several regions of my state being classified as labor surplus areas," he wrote. "Under these conditions, I feel that all coal sent to foreign countries under the mutual security program should be purchased within the United States."

Revercomb told the Senate such action by the administration would be in keeping with other steps to check the recession.

Mercury Rises Throughout Tri-State Area

Rain Or Possibly More Snow Forecast

Despite an early morning snowfall yesterday in Garrett County which added another one-half inch to an accumulation of over 14 inches of snow over the weekend, barometers continued to rise and the area had one of the warmest days of the month.

Weather Bureau forecasts have called for another heavy snowfall in the state, but higher temperatures and the steady rise of the barometer indicate it may change to rain in this area.

Cumberland had a high of 40 degrees yesterday, with the low recorded at 30 and at 6 o'clock last night the mercury registered 37 degrees. This is several degrees warmer than any other day this month at the same time.

R. R. Golden, weather observer at Constitution Park, said a low pressure area is moving toward Maryland from the south and may cause rain if the temperatures remain warm. However, an approaching high pressure area from the west could cause the mercury to tumble and result in another heavy snow.

Pennsylvania authorities reported one of the warmest days of the month yesterday.

State police at Romney, W. Va., said snow flurries were scattered throughout the day but rising temperatures caused the accumulated snow on the ground to rapidly melt. It was cloudy and about 32 degrees above zero at 9 p. m.

Garrett County had another one-half inch of snow yesterday morning, but temperatures were up and State Road Commission crews had little difficulty clearing main and "secondary roads throughout the county.

Authorities said all roads were clear and dry last night in the westernmost county.

Jaycees Boost Library Week With Contests

The Cumberland Junior Association of Commerce is urging citizens to join in the observance of National Library Week.

Jaycees are sponsoring three special activities to stimulate interest in the observance which began yesterday.

A contest is being held in schools for the best slogans on the significance of Library Week. Slogans must be 10 words or less and prizes will be awarded for elementary, junior high and high school students.

Frank Deremer, Library Week committee chairman, reports a number of entries have been received and that additional slogans may be submitted during the observance which ends Saturday.

A second contest is open to all persons who borrow a book from the Cumberland Free Public Library this week. A valuable book will be presented, Mr. Deremer said, to the holder of the lucky library card selected at the end of the week. The only requirement is that one borrow a book during the March 17-22 period.

A book review program is also being sponsored by Cumberland Jaycees this week. Reviews are to be 100 words or less and are to be on current best sellers.

Anyone who desires to volunteer his services may contact Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, for a list of books available. The reviews will be published, Mr. Deremer said.

Library Week has been adopted as a national Jaycee project in cooperation with the American Library Association and the National Book Committee.

Sentinel Editors Guests At Overseas Press Club

Two members of the Fort Hill Sentinel staff and their faculty advisor, while in New York attending the Columbia Scholastic Press Association, were invited guests at the famed Overseas Press Club.

Miss Carol Dunlap, co-editor-in-chief and David Rowley, sports editor, along with Miss Mary Calamine, advisor, were invited to an informal reception at the Press Club, after the Sentinel won top honors in scholastic papers of the larger high schools.

Miss Dunlap said yesterday that only 20 high schools from throughout the country were honored by the top newswriters, correspondents and reporters who make up the 200 members of the club. She said many of the Press Club members were on hand to greet them and to talk informally about their experiences and the field of journalism.

She was particularly impressed with Ansel E. Talbot, vice president of the club who served as host; with Inez Robb, columnist who extended a welcome; Henry Cassidy, NBC news commentator; Al Perlmutter, Murray Lewis, Cornelius Ryan, a free lance writer; Dorothy O'Mansky of the Civil Defense public relations department for New York; Larry Newman, a Hearst columnist; Thomas Whitney, Ben Grower, news commentator and writer, and Kathleen McLaughlin, of the New York Times.

Those writers told the high school journalists, Miss Calamine noted, that there are broad and expanding opportunities for top-flight reporters and writers. They recommended, in their formal and informal talks and conversations, that young people who aspire to this field as a career, should obtain a general and broad education, and to broaden their experience in as many fields as possible. They complimented the group on the strides they are making in the quality of their high school papers and answered questions about the field of writing.

The local group from Fort Hill High School attending the CSPS sessions also included Peggy Davis, Joan Shanski, Rosalie Brown, Ruth Lewis, Alice Spoerl and James Lewis, all of the Sentinel staff.

The delegation visited the United Nations center and had lunch in the UN dining room; attended the Press Association banquet given in their honor; made a general tour of the city and went through the big plant of the New York Times.

Authors Honored At Library

One of the highlights of Library Week here this week was an informal party last night at the Cumberland Free Public Library at which time a number of authors of Allegany County were honored. One of the authors is Judge Walter N. Capper, second from the left, who has written a book, "The New Nationalism." Looking over his book, left to right, are Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, Judge Capper, Mrs. Charles M. See, who has written a number of poems, and James Alfred Avirett, a member of the Library Board. Efforts are being made to get more people to visit the library.
